

P404

P404 -Acute kidney injury (AKI)

Dr Andrew Lewington², Dr Nick Selby¹

¹Nottingham/Derby, , ²Leeds, ,

Our aims:

- generating research ideas for clinical studies in AKI
- identifying and communicating priority areas for clinical research into AKI
- providing a resource to assist investigators in developing or refining clinical research studies
- facilitating collaboration between investigators involved in AKI clinical research.

Who we are:

We are a national group dedicated to initiating and supporting clinical research into acute kidney injury. If you have a research idea or proposal we would like to hear from you. We can help investigators in the acquisition of grant funding, provide advice about study design, facilitate potential collaboration and involvement with the CSG can be cited in funding applications.

We aim to align research to clinical questions that are important and relevant to NHS practitioners. By working closely with key implementation organisations, such as NHS England, the AKI CSG have started to show what the UK can offer in the area of research development and delivery.